October 2021 Buying a press edition December 2019 The purchase on Amazon (note: today's post, Best Books for Pastors Wives, is written with the wives of the shepherd in mind. Not the wife of a shepherd? Don't worry! Take the Link and share it with your shepherd's wife, or share it so that others can find it.) # I was talking to me in an inquisitive way through its thin and framed glasses, â € œSti to play the piano tonight? â € Oh no , not that question again, I thought about it. It seemed that every time my husband was a guest minister in another church, I was asked the same question â € "I'm going to play the plan? Here is the capture: I can't play the piano. Please understand, it's not that I haven't tried. All the good wives of the preachers play the piano, right? As a young woman, I took lessons, and I took more lessons, and I tried less lessons again, just to find that I am not musically gifted, and no quantities of lessons would ever have made me better. From those previous years, I have learned the wives of the shepherds to come to all shapes and sizes, with different talents, gifts and skillets. We are not all the same. I love research, write and encourage. Others may feel attracted to interception prayer. Yet many common stereotypes tell the wives of the shepherds who should play the piano, sing, teach Sunday school, host the studies of the Bible domestic, guide the Ministry of Women, give all the hours of wakefulness to the work of the Church, while also being a help to their husband and a perfect mom for perfect children, and much more. Who can continue? Of course not! Did you know that the Bible does not give a specific â € œ Description of the work: to the wives of the Ministry? We can serve the body of Christ without giving credit to those stereotypes. We can teach, guide, play, sing, write ... the talents gave us for the edification of the body. In short, we are all called to serve and to love. serve faithfully, with all heart, as to the Lord, sir, it it beÃ as a ministry leader, Sunday school teacher,Ã churchÃ doorÃ greeter, or passionate encourager. AnÃ older, wiser minister¢ÂÂsÃ wife onceÃ told me, ¢ÂÂÃYou didn¢ÂÂÃt marry the ministry, you married the man.¢ÂÂÂ In other words, don¢ÂÂÃt feel discouraged when you¢ÂÂÂre not able to live up to everyone¢ÂÂÂs expectations. YouÃ can¢ÃÂÃt be all things to all people, but you canÃ take steps to cultivate a strong marriage and be the wife your husband needs, while raising your children to love the things of God and appreciate the nuances ofÃ ministry life. One pastor of a well-known church has been known to say, ¢ÂÂÂYour greatest contribution to the kingdom of God may not be something you do, but someone you raise.¢ÂÂÂ Your calling in this season of life might simply look likeÃ serving your family to the best of your ability. Your childrenÃ might be your mission field! One question new pastors¢ÃÂÂ wives often ask is if there are any helpful books written for ministry wives, and so this list was born. These books are suggestions sharedÃ by other seasoned, respectedÃ pastors¢ÃÂÂ wives. While I haven¢ÂÂÂt personally read them all, I¢ÂÂÂve read a couple of them, and all of themÃ are well-reviewed. I¢ÂÂÂve linked them to Amazon so you can read the summaries and reviews of each. (Please share this list with your pastor¢ÂÂÂs wife so she can use it as a resource, too.) She might be serving in the children¢ÂÂs ministry or with the worship team and looking to her own prep ahead of her. Once she gets to church and drops off the kids, she will enter into worship¢ÂÂÂusually alone¢ÂÂÂwhile you lead the service and preach. And as she participates, she will be listening for ways she can encourage you when you ask for her feedback about the service on Sunday afternoon. After church you will be busy meeting and greeting people and connecting with staff members while she rounds up the kids and heads home to prepare a meal for her hungry family. And along the way, some of your flock may even stop her to get a message through to you because they ¢ÂÂÂknow how busy our pastor is and wouldn¢ÂÂÂt want to bother him.¢ÂÂÂ Believe me, Sunday mornings are hard for pastor wives. What can you do to help? Ask your wife what Sunday mornings are like for her! What does she enjoy about them? What does she find hard? Is there anything you can do that would help your wife rejoice in her decision to marry a pastor? Try to make it work forÂ ÂbothÂ Âof you. Your wife deeply identifies with the ups and downs of your ministry.Ã ÂShe sees behind the scenes. She knows how hard you work six days each week¢ÂÂÂand also on Christmas Eve and Good Friday and Easter and for funerals and weddings and other special services¢ÂÂÂand she tries to happily fit into your busy schedule. She responds to cries for help that arise from your flock. She hurts over the distance that is growing between her and that couple you married and invested deeply in who now, for some inexplicable reason, have left your fellowship for a different church. She hears the fatigue in your voice on Monday mornings after you have You are everything and I still fight with feelings of failure. He sees the questions in your eyes after the meeting of the elderly to discuss the staff who are shooting. Your wife is busy with you and your ministry, and she feels both a failure as it sometimes. She wants to encourage you and lift you, but she doesn't know how. You can teach them how. Ray needed to teach me. I still remember that Sunday evening, after preaching for two services in the morning and then a different sermon for evening service. We were discussing how the day went and I was going on and about two suggestions for him from a couple of people. In the end, he came to me and took me in his arms. He attracted my attention with his tender but intense orthlund gaze until in the end I stopped chatting on the correct way to pronounce the name of the missionary-o whatever the problem for that particular Sunday was. Then he said something that I never forgot: "Darling, every man on the face of this land needs someone who believes in him, who is not trying to change or fix him, that he likes the way in the way he is. I ask, would you be willing to be that person for me? But I needed Ray's coaching. So, I gently train your wife. You can start asking them: "Can I tell you something that really works for me? Ã â,¬ and then share like you two you can be a winning team in this call from Christ. Give him the words of him to say that he helps you. And then thank her in significant ways when he uses them! Sometimes the shepherd's wife feels as if the church has had "two for the price". Your wife wants to help you in your ministry. But how many other professions is called his wife as much as in the pastorate? She can get tired. Maybe you asked her to try your sermon or listen to your new podcast. Maybe she is the dinner of the new member who four times a year, or theFamily that needs to be with you the week in which they are candidates, or the couple who fight in their wedding who wants to talk to both of us or the staff of the staff that you would like to host at your home. The list continues. Even the wife of the most devoted shepherd does not have infinite energy. What could help her? Show you that it's not everything about her. Facts happily involved in practical ways. Do you need help with a ride Costco? How about configuring in advance and cleaning later? Give the next day with a light dinner, or libe it to pamper yourself with the nail lounge or to its favorite bar. Show you how much the extra job you put inside you and you say how beautiful loving service to the king you find. Your wife could be intimidated by your theological competence. Have your wife worked to help you in the seminary? Or was she at home with young children while you attended lessons? He can hesitate to talk to you about her concerns about her and her of her concerns about her because she feels a gap between her mastery of the Bible and yours. I found difficult to discuss with Ray some ideas I had because I felt that he was more intelligent of me. I was too shy to make my voice heard for fear of looking stupid or becoming too emotional. So, I would just go down and retire and stew. But I couldn't resist for the delicate very long requests from Ray I open. He said: "You make it a win-win, treasure. Please tell me how I can be a better husband for you. Â € has absorbed my fear of looking spiritually immature and helped me feel accepted for my true self. He has Made questions and he listened to me, showing that I am interested in learning from me. I felt so appreciated, so sure. It is not what you want, but your wife could be afraid of being vulnerable with you, her husband and her shepherd . Really in depth, you are disappointed that you chose that it was your wife.
