I believe that the red moon is simply the days that the general times and under the feet are closest to the sun rise and set. Same here on USPREMESTES ... This was November 18th — New Moon Day. It also says that you can also plan for moonfarming, but I didn't pay attention to that long one to form an opinion. You'll also have access to the wagon guide and a collection of articles, videos and tips and tactics from Adam Hays and Team200 to help you score the biggest dollars in your area consistently. Keep track of field observations in the PRO Journal and get exclusive discounts to the best products available! Discuss deer hunting tactics, deer behavior. Buddy bought the guide to the moon, Ã¨ simple and useful but in a high pressure situation you would be better to always push close to Bedding. This Ã² is what Bill Vale says in his book. I never paid attention to him until last season. The Deer Hunter Moonguide tells you the best days, times and places to meet a ripe dollar standing during daylight hours. Are you tired of hunting pictures of night hunting trails? It takes a couple of times to actually grab it. Like anything else it doesn't work all the time, but Ã¨ another great tool. It is not related to the phase of the moon. Just go to usprimetimes.com to All the details you need. I imagine it is possible that it could sit longer or get to my afternoon stand in front or sit in different times ... but this is the only change. I wonder if someone has ever based their own times off the major/minor periods and saw a difference in bucks moving? Skip the guide and watch those overhead/underfoot times, I have even seen ok movement during the minor periods. By buddy purchased his moon guide, is simple and useful but in a high pressure situation you'd be best always pushing near bedding. Don¢ÂÂt like tripling the price but I¢ÂÂm sure there is some marketing cost buried in that.What about his concept about the red moon or something like that? I keep a detailed account of all my hunts. and I agree i have seen more deer during the minor phases than the major. The best days are when peak times are within 2 hours of sunrise or sunset. Post your Hunting Stories, Pictures, and Questions/Answers. It is also probably harder to see in high deer density areas because you see too many deer to notice a difference and they are out and about at prime time anyway. The MoonGuide utilizes elements such as the moon's gravitational pull and the position of the Moon in the sky. It also works great for turkeys too, so many times I will be driving and see turkeys feed along side the roads at peak moon times. It gets way more involved than that though.
