"Because I love you. And one of us should be happy." —Queen Mary Francis and Mary Reunite as they learn of England's plan for retribution. As the castle prepares for The Winter’s Ease Feast, King Antoine of Navarre reveals England's plan for revenge against France to Francis and Mary. Bash learns that an “undead” man has been seen in the village and his efforts to track the man down lead him to a mysterious woman in white. Meanwhile, Catherine finds out the cause of her hallucinations. Quotes[] Queen Catherine: French refugees, please! More like he’s run through his wife’s money & she’s cut him off. Refuse him, & send him home! Queen Catherine: Oh, that is so like him. A last gift so I never forget him or his whores. Queen Catherine: Say that I died of consumptions while helping orphans! Lady Kenna: I know I can be my own worst enemy, but I don’t want to be your worst enemy. Lord Narcisse: Though Navarre may be a tiny nation, his foes don’t tend to survive. King Francis: Another thing that makes you the man for the job. Lady Kenna: You are terrible. King Antoine: Tell me about your husband then. Lady Lola: I can’t believe you're making these suggestions. The king discredited you, you don’t even have a house now. (Lola finds Narcisse making out with Princess Claude) Lady Lola: I just saw Narcisse with Claude. Lady Kenna: In there!? Really...Oh I’m so sorry! Lady Lola: I’m being courted by a handsome prince. Literally! King Francis: How could you send me to another? How!? Queen Mary: Because I love you. And one of us should be happy. Notes[] Queen Elizabeth and The Tudor Dynasty are making a strong defence against Scotland and France. Believing King Francis and Queen Mary to be getting ready to try and take England and put a Catholic Queen on the throne, ever since Mary wore Elizabeth's Coat of Arms earlier that year. [1] Queen Elizabeth, King Henry, Diane de Poitiers, Queen Jeanne and Clarissa are all mentioned, but do not appear. With both Queen's having never been seen on-screen. The Opening Song returns. Nostradamus's Predictions are brought up. The Winter’s Ease Feast also known as First Bloom is celebrated for the end of Winter. King Antoine reveals he has a wife, Queen Jeanne. The Italian Wars were once again brought up. Stirling can be seen at Mary's side in her chambers. Stéphane Narcisse revealed he had a brother. Though Narcisse's titles, money, and power has been taken away, soon after this episode he is still referred to as Lord Narcisse even by King Francis. King Antoine and Louis Condé reveal to have had a 3rd brother, Marcus de Bourbon King Henry's Bible was the source of his, and Queen Catherine's poisoning. Death Toll [2] [3] Trivia[] Historical Notes[] King Antoine and Louis Condé had 11 other brothers and sisters. None of whom were named Marcus The Italian Wars ended in 1559. Reign has just entered the year, 1559. King Antoine does have a wife in 1559, Jeanne III, Queen of Navarre, and already have one child. Historically many people were barred alive by mistake. That's where the phrase Save by the Bell came from. When people were not sure if someone was dead, they tied a bell to their finger. If the bell began ringing then the person would be dug up. Seeing an open grave in this time period would not be uncommon. Grave robbery was a popular thing in the 16th century. Thieves would dig up anyone they thought might have been laid to rest with anything of worth. It declined in popularity but was around up until the early 1900s. But while that’s the case, there’s no denying that the country’s representatives are beautiful, intelligent, and successful in their own right. As the Miss World Philippines (MWP) organization crown a new queen on Sunday, August 8, let us take a look at the past 10 titleholders and what they're now up to after their respective reigns: Gwendoline Ruais (2011) Filipino-French model Gwendoline Ruais was the first representative of the Philippines in the Miss World competition under the management of Cory Quirino. She competed in London, United Kingdom, where she placed 1st runner-up. After her reign, Gwen became a regular performer at GMA’s variety show Party Pilipinas and a host for Unang Hirit in 2012 . In 2016, she joined Asia’s Next Top Model season 4 . She placed 11th overall. Catriona made the revelation on Friday, February 22, during an interview on Tonight With Boy Abunda . When asked whether she and the model-actor are still together, she said no. "Are you single now? Boy asked. " Opo (Yes)," she answered. Asked who initiated the breakup, Catriona said that even before the Miss Universe competition, she and Clint already had misunderstandings. Still, he supported her as she competed in the pageant in Thailand. "It was really hard going through the competition with that happening all at the same time but I had to keep reminding myself this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. League after getting clearance from the TNT Tropang Giga, his mother team in the PBA. Long rumored to have attracted the attention of B. League teams, the do-it-all guard can now see action in Japan, where a handful of Filipino players have pursued overseas careers. "We have sent a letter to the PBA [that] we release him to play in the Japanese league," said TNT chairman Ricky Vargas told Rappler. Although Parks did not sign a new contract with the Tropang Giga after the previous PBA season, the team still owned his rights prior to his release. Vargas said he has "no idea" which B. League team the second-generation star – the son of former PBA import Bobby Ray Parks Sr – will play for. Parks led TNT to the finals of the Philippine Cup last season and contended for Best Player of the Conference after averaging 22.4 points, 7.8 rebounds, 3.1 assists, and 1.5 steals. INQUIRER PHOTO/FRANCIS OCHOA TOKYO—Carlos Yulo was at a loss for words Saturday night after failing to qualify for the floor exercise final, the gymnastics event where he was favored to win a gold medal in the Tokyo Olympics here. “I don’t know what happened,” he said in Filipino as he was walking past the mixed zone at Ariake Gymnastics center late Saturday evening. “I came here really prepared. I did my best,” Yulo added. “Maybe it just wasn’t meant for me.” Yulo fumbled a landing early in his routine and wound up scoring low on execution to finish with 13.566 points. “It’s hard to explain [what happened with the landing],” he said. Yulo, the reigning world champion in floor exercise, finished 44th in the event. Yulo made it to the vault finals, however, placing sixth in the preliminaries with 14.712. Practically illiterate after completing only Grade 1 many decades ago, he was made to look stupid and inconsistent in his narration of what he knew. The son of a forest ranger who planted coffee and corn to support his family, the short, stocky Edgar with streaks of silver hair showed little traces of a man who had witnessed and even participated in the killing of hundreds of people – many of them criminals who were a menace to Davao. They were drug pushers, snatchers, hold-uppers, land-grabbers, and they all deserved to die, he thought. Edgar took pride in his job. He says his was among ... » Learn More about Edgar Matobato: Liar or truth-teller? In the same session hall where he denied the existence of the Davao Death Squad (DDS), his supposed involvement in it, and President Rodrigo Duterte’s alleged orders to kill crime suspects and personal foes, Arturo “Arthur” Lascañas on Monday, March 6, claimed all these to be true as he became the second self-confessed hitman to make such admission official on Senate records. Lascañas’ 180-degree turnaround did not sit well with many senators, who repeatedly questioned the motives behind his transformation from one of the many Davaoeños who deny the existence of the infamous DDS into a whistle-blower. Lascañas, who retired from the police force in December 2016, served in the Davao City Police Office practically his entire career. In a press conference two weeks ago and in an affidavit leaked to media, Lascañas claimed to have been among the founding members of the hit squad. He was proud, at first, to be part of Duterte’s efforts to rid Davao City of crime. ... » Learn More about From DDS ‘denier’ to whistle-blower: Why Lascañas changed tune (Reuters) - Former chief executive officer of Virgin Galactic Holdings, George Whitesides, will fly to space on the aerospace company's next test spaceflight, CNBC reported on Friday. Richard Branson, the billionaire founder of Virgin Galactic, flew to space earlier this month, beating Amazon.com Inc's Jeff Bezos to the final frontier. Branson announced the news about Whitesides during a party in New Mexico on July 11, following his own spaceflight, the report said. Lori Garver, a former deputy administrator of NASA was present at the party and told CNBC that Branson said, "George will be leading our next flight." (Branson, whose spaceflight marked a symbolic milestone for the venture he started 17 years ago, touted the mission as a precursor to a new era of space tourism. Olympians from the past – Rashid Sidek, Ong Ewe Hock, Mohd Roslin Hashim and Koo Kien Keat – believe that Malaysian players have an equal chance and ability to make the Tokyo Olympics a fruitful outing. The badminton action begins tomorrow and hopes are on Lee Zii Jia (men’s singles), Aaron Chia-Soh Wooi Yik (men’s doubles), Soniia Cheah (women’s singles), Lee Meng Yean-Chow Mei Kuan (women’s doubles) and Chan Peng Soon-Goh Liu Ying (mixed doubles) to strut their stuff. The 1996 Atlanta Olympics bronze medallist Rashid said Malaysia should ride on their recent All-England success, where Zii Jia topped two giants in Kento Momota of Japan and Viktor Axelsen of Denmark en route to winning the singles title. “We’ve an All-England champ and it should just give the whole team the confidence. He was not expected to win but Zii Jia defied the odds. Our team in Tokyo should compete in the Olympics with the same spirit,” said Rashid. ... » Learn More about Your time to shine
