These days, our culture rewards the best opinions and rapid conclusions. At a time when each part seems convinced he has the answers, the Atlantic and HBO are collaborating on a series of short films that challenge our certainties. The ultimate civil speech depends on a recognition that none of us has a complete understanding of the world ... and that we are best when we commit ourselves with topics we face our deepest beliefs. So that we, as a company, move towards a better and shared future. We invite you to #QuestionYourrenswers with us. Should I be scared? Jeffrey Wright, 03:22 Jeffrey Wright asks: should it be scared? Typecastmichael K. Williams, 02:52 Michael K. Williams asks: Is it Typecast? My daughter asked for a lot of questions lately. We were sharing a little time "only us" the other night after his brother fell asleep, and she wanted to know whose idea was to get a divorce Â ¢ â,¬ "Mine, or his father? Oh boy. I gave a diplomatic "well", it was what we wanted both ... "Reply, but didn't stop there. "No mom, I mean, who said the words before?" She asked. "Who said" I want a divorce "the first time?" She did it, and she did it in an e-mail because she didn't have the courage to say to my face. "Well, it wasn't so, honey," I was instited. "We were both unhappy for a long time, so when we finally discuss it, it wasn't a surprise and it was what we were thinking both." "Why didn't you tried Counseling?" She persisted. "Kaya at school said her parents went to consultancy and didn't have a divorce." "Yes, it works for some people, darling." People who don't have another woman involved that her husband firmly designs to have a life with ... "Maybe you should try it. Maybe he would work for you." "Anna, I know you mean well, and I know you'd like this functions instead of us getting a divorce, but it's not going. Your father and I moved too far away trying to work. This is what is happening now, too If it's not what is easier or what you feel the best right now for everyone. "In the end he changed the subject and we talked about school and life and film and life and our favorite flavor of sticks and life of Pixie. Then she fell asleep, and looked at her, feeling the weight of leaving her down. One day, you will make these questions again, and you will get more honest answers. She doesn't need to know every detail, certainly, and I never want to vile her father of her to her.
