Congrats, grad! XOXO, Your #1 FansWhile parents may write the senior yearbook ad, feel free to include pets, siblings, grandparents, and whoever else resonates! Graduation celebrates accomplishment, yes, but it's also a love-filled day. Thank goodness. While some might think senior yearbook ads are self-explanatory, it probably helps to ask, what, exactly, are we advertising here? Love, Dad and GramMelissa, you epitomize resilience, grace, perseverance, endurance, strength, and wisdom. Having everything at the ready makes designing a lot easier.Photos. A senior page should reflect the student¢ÂÂÂs personality and document who they are at this exciting time in their life. Having tons of emotions gives you tons of options.As students and parents reflect on this unique high school journey, knowing how you feel can steer the ship accordingly.For all you funny folk looking to make light of the moment, consider these phrases:Well, you did it. With limited space to throw in photos, text, and pops of color, it helps to have a clear focus.While you consider your direction, you'll also want to pick a tone. Customize your design with graphics, photo effects, and textures.Easily crop or resize your design as needed.Take a peek at this article, How to Make a High Resolution Image for Print, so that you can hand off a high-quality image to the yearbook committee. Consider your child's interests and work from there.Before you put the pedal to the metal ¢ÂÂÂ or, ya know, the cursor to the canvas ¢ÂÂÂ round up a couple things. We learn more from you each and every day. Swap out text and images with your own. Making a stellar senior yearbook ad can feel like a pop quiz in creativity. The more, the merrier!For those ready to reflect on this incredible four-year journey, sentimental messages are always welcome.Just when we thought we couldn't be prouder of you, Stacey, there you go again. Try three different angles from the photo shoot, or show your grad growing up at three different stages in their life. We're in awe of your accomplishments and can't wait to see you grow. Let's take a look at what you'll need to start, some all-star design ideas, and how to easily create your ad in PicMonkey.Before we get started, we've got some things to clarify. When downloading your file from PicMonkey to your computer, keep in mind that PNG files are better quality than JPG files, so if you can use this format, do it.See, your kid's not the only one learning. Here's how to do it in four quick steps.Open one of our templates. Yes, graduation's a celebratory moment, but it can also be very emotional. In the event you need something in between these two, you can never fail with a quote, lyric, passage, or inspirational phrase to guide you. Browse our graduation card templates or grad announcement templates for quick designs!See more templates like thisThis senior ad design is good as gold, with a trio of black and white pics offsetting one in-color image. It's done. The layered scrapbook look is popular on Instagram, and you can get the same aesthetic in your senior yearbook page with graphics like these from our Illustrated Plants collection, and the Scrapbooky Tape collection. Senior ads can feature one or multiple photos. We love you! Love, Mom, Pop, and Bambi#whoa #graduate #youdidit #arewedoingthisright #lovemomandgrandpaYou've taught us everything we know. Congratulations! Love, Mom & DadSoak it up, hon! The real world awaits. Use PicMonkey's Collage tool to make a gridded collage by choosing a layout, and then filling the cells with photos, and adding text or graphics. Too many, and your design may not look as polished.Congrats, you passed! We're fully confident you have all the tools and ideas you need to rock out your best senior yearbook page ideas.
