NCLEX comes in two different ways. NCLEX-PN evaluates aspiring practical nurses (also known as licensed practical nurses or licensed vocational nurses). NCLEX-RN registered nursing candidates tests. The two tests are similar in some greetings, but they come with the main differences. The RN exam emphasizes the management of care and evaluates the advanced scope of the pratics of registered nurses. The PN exam includes more questions about the care coordination. 2. The NCLEX exam concentrates on four areas The NCLEX exam is divided into four main areas of focus: providing a safe and effective care environment, health promotion and maintenance, Psychosocial integrity and physiological integrity. These main categories break more in specific topics. For example, the category of safe and effective care addresses the rights and responsibilities of customers. 3. NCLEX exam offers questions in different formats that NCLEX follows a variable question format. This means that the computer adapts the questions based on the performance of the test takers, so the NCLEX-RN can consist of anywhere from the 74-145 questions. This includes 15-integral questions that do not count for the punctions of the testers. NCLEX-PN can deliver 85-205 questions, including 25 questions not marked. Both exams come with a time limit of five hours. The test offers questions in different formats, which you can learn to dominate with our NCLEX study guide. These formats include multiple choice, fill in the blank, orderly and / or hot questions. About 80-90% are multiple issues choice. 4.
