The game is a RPG fighting game a bit like Dragon Ball Xenoverse and is sequel. The game is not considered the open world with a massive sandbox but instead divided into individual hubs that will be blocked up to a certain point in history, only then these areas will be unlocked by exploration. These individual hubs are not small and the opening of these areas more reason to have flight as a travel mode with verticality and the area that are impressive. Some areas are full of life and city while others are more sterile and free of life. There are several mini-games including fishing and baseball. One of the game modes is called training reasons and allows players to deal with other characters to unlock or improve super attacks. Interruptions are short free time periods between sagas in the main story. The player is administered more freedom to explore, train or complete mini / sub stories. It is also a perfect time to make preparations before the next saga. In addition, the player can change those in his part even if they won't have direct control over the support characters and some intermissions have limited support characters (such as post-Saiyan characters that only present Krillin as a support for Gohan due to the gooku ports Wounded and the others died).
