Russia is the world’s largest country, with a total land area of 17,098,242 km2 (6,601,665 mi2) and a land area of 16,376,870 km2 (6,323,142 mi2), accounting for 11% of the world’s total landmass of 148,940,000 km2 (57,510,000 square miles). Russia is the world’s largest country, spanning eleven time zones and bordering sixteen sovereign nations. With a population of 145.5 million people, it is the ninth most populous country in the world and the most populated country in Europe. Moscow, the nation’s capital and largest metropolis, is also Europe’s largest city. Saint Petersburg, Russia’s cultural capital and second-largest metropolis, is the country’s second-largest city. Novosibirsk, Yekaterinburg, Nizhny Novgorod, and Kazan are among the other significant cities. Position of India: Area Wise In terms of geographical area, India is ranked seventh in the world. It covers 32,87,263 square kilometres. India stretches from latitudes 8o4’N to 37o6’N. It is an eastern country with a landmass that lies between longitudes 68o7’E and 97o25’E. Largest Country in the world: By Population China is the most Populated country in the world. The eastern side of the country is home to the majority of the inhabitants. Hong Kong, one of its dependents, would place approximately 100th in a list of countries. China, with a land area of about 3.7 million square miles, is Asia’s largest country. Mountainous terrain covers the majority of the country. The Tien Shan, Kunlun chain, and Trans-Himalaya are its main mountain ranges. Tibet, which China captured in 1950, is located in the southwest. To the north is the Gobi Desert. Position of India: By Population According to UN figures, India’s population in 2020 is expected to be 1,380,004,385 people. India’s population accounts for 17.7% of the world’s total population. India is ranked second in terms of population among countries (including dependent territories). Largest Country in the world: By Economy Countries are ranked according to nominal GDP predictions from financial and statistical organisations, which are derived using market or official exchange rates. Nominal GDP does not account for differences in the cost of living between countries, and findings can fluctuate from year to year due to movements in currency exchange rates in any specific country. In terms of nominal GDP, the United States has the world’s largest economy. The service sector of the economy, that contains finance, real estate, insurance, professional and business facilities, and healthcare, is the largest contributor to GDP in the United States. Position of India: By Economy Indian economy is a developing market economy with a middle class income. It has the sixth-largest nominal GDP and the third-largest purchasing power parity economy in the world (PPP). According to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), India ranks 144th by nominal GDP and 128th by nominal GDP per capita (PPP). Largest Country in the world: By Army China had the world’s largest armed forces by active duty service personnel in 2022, with almost 2 million active soldiers. The People’s Liberation Army (PLA) is the Chinese Communist Party’s armed branch and the country’s primary military force (CCP). Ground Force, Navy, Air Force, Rocket Force, and Strategic Support Force are the five service branches that make up the PLA. The Central Military Commission (CMC), whose chairman serves as commander-in-chief, is in charge of it. With over one million active military members, India, the United States, North Korea, and Russia rounded out the top five largest armies. Position of India: By Army India has the second largest army in terms of active military personals. But, India’s military ranks fourth among 140 countries in the newly issued Global Firepower (GFP) annual defence review. With a Power Index score of 0.0453, the United States undoubtedly takes the top spot among 140 countries in the 2022 rankings, while the unreachable perfect score is zero.
