Meaning of santeria word

Suriyo Hmun Kaew / EyeEmGetty Images Bob Dylan said the times are a-changin' all the way back in 1964 ... and they haven't stopped since. So many slang words are floating around these days that you may not even realize you're using half of them. And thanks to our obsession with texting and Twitter, new abbreviations keep popping up all the time. These millennial slang words get thrown around on internet and in person, but good luck finding them in the dictionary. Although Merriam-Webster has officially added the likes of "bingeable" and "hangry" to its thousands of entries, etymologists may have a hard time keeping up with all of the lingo making it into the mainstream these days. And if you've ever hung out around teens, then you also know that existing words like "ghost" and "receipts" can have completely different meanings. Fair warning: Prepare for major eyerolls before using any of these terms around your kids, but at least you'll understand the memes getting thrown around in the family group text. 1 of 30 Basic Outside of chemistry class, basic describes something (or someone) extremely mainstream. Things that are basic include: Starbucks lattes, Taylor Swift, and blue J. Crew button downs. 3 of 30 Ghost Dating apps made it easy to ghost — or cut off all communication with — someone you're no longer interested in. Slipping out of the party undetected? That also counts as ghosting. 4 of 30 Mood Use mood in lieu of saying "same." Generally, it describes something you're into, as in, "All I want to do tonight is lay on my couch and watch The Bachelorette." "Big mood." 5 of 30 Receipts No, not the really long ones from CVS. These kinds of receipts usually come in digital form, like screenshots of text messages or Snapchats. They're considered evidence or proof when something dramatic is going down.RELATED: Which Regional Words Do You Use? 6 of 30 Salty Feeling salty is akin to feeling upset or angry — usually over something minor, like getting teased. 7 of 30 Shade Yeah, you can call your sunglasses shades, but the singular form can mean suspicious or disrespectful behavior. Ever casually dissed something? That's considered throwing shade. 8 of 30 Shook Use it as an adjective and you'll mean shocked, surprised, or startled. The inner monologue for feeling shook is "Whoa, what just happened?" RELATED: The 25 Most Commonly Misspelled Words 9 of 30 Slay To slay means to kill something — in a good way. Aced a test? You slayed it. Wearing something amazing? You're slaying! 10 of 30 Tea Consider a tea a synonym for gossip. If someone asks you to spill the tea, she wants the inside scoop on what went down. 11 of 30 AF Want to emphasize something? AF stands for "as f*ck" — as in people who use this word think they're cool AF. 12 of 30 Bae 13 of 30 Bye Felicia The perfect dismissal, bye Felicia dates back to the 1995 movie Friday, when Ice Cube shuts down a character named (you guessed it) Felicia. If you're ready to wave goodbye to someone or something unimportant, this is the phrase for you. 14 of 30 Extra Not too different than its dictionary definition, extra in a slang sense usually translates to over the top. The key difference? It's kinda got a negative connotation, as in trying too hard or doing too much. 16 of 30 High Key If you think you've mastered the phrase "low key" (like on the down low), try using its antonym. Anything you're saying loud and proud is definitely high key. 17 of 30 Hundo P This means 100%. That's it. Use it instead of "of course" or "definitely." 18 of 30 JOMO We've all experienced FOMO, or the "fear of missing out," but JOMO describes the opposite. If you're more than content to stay in and watch Netflix, that's the joy of missing out. 20 of 30 LB Instagrammers know that LB stands for "like back," while FB similarly means "follow back." If you start seeing these all over your post's comments, know that some people want tit for tat — essentially I like your photo, you like mine. 21 of 30 Lit "Lit" can mean cool — especially when it comes to parties — but some people also use it as a synonym for drunk or high. Moms, you've been warned. 23 of 30 RT You don't have to be on Twitter to use this one. It literally stands for retweet, but RT in the slang sense can refer to anything you agree with, 140 characters or more. 24 of 30 Ship Do you just know that two people belong together? Well, you're by definition "shipping" them. The word is short for "relationship," but it's used as a verb. The original OTP that allegedly inspired the phrase dates way back though: Fox Mulder and Dana Scully of the '90s series The X-Files. 25 of 30 Stan Here's another "new" word that predates today's teens. Eminem rapped the song "Stan" in 2000 about an obsessed fictional follower. The name is actually kind of a portmanteau of "stalker" and "fan," and it now describes worshippers of any celeb.RELATED: The New Word That Debuted the Year You Were Born 26 of 30 Snatched If you already know the trendy phrase "on fleek," kudos to you. You can use the even trendier "snatched" in the same way, basically to describe things (especially style) as cool or on point. 27 of 30 Suh Combine "sup" with "huh" and you get "suh." Yeah, it's pretty stupid, but what else do you expect from a word that gets its start in a viral video? 28 of 30 Turnt Turnt can mean drunk, but don't ground anyone just yet. It can also describe a state of general excitement or craziness. 29 of 30 Woke While it's sometimes used in a sarcastic sense, getting called "woke" is usually a compliment. It means you're knowledgeable, sympathetic, and aware, especially when it comes to contentious debates around race and gender. 30 of 30 Yass This one is best expressed "YASS!" and maybe even with a few extra S's — for added emphasis. That said, this one's pretty simple: It simply means "yes!" albeit in a more enthusiastic (and slightly more annoying) way. meaning of spanish word santeria. what is the meaning of santeria. santeria define. what does santeria mean in english. what does santeria mean
